

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

the retiring Punit Renjen.

Jason Bramwell • Nov. 01, 2022

When Punit Renjen hangs it up as Deloitte's global CEO on Dec. 31, the head of the Big Four firm's operations in the U.S. is expected to take over.

Joe Ucuzoglu

Joe Ucuzoglu, who has been CEO of Deloitte US since 2019, will succeed Renjen as

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Global executive team for the last several years, and I am confident that, under his leadership, Deloitte will continue to deliver outstanding results for our people, clients, and the communities in which we live and work,” he said.

It is not known yet who would take over as CEO of Deloitte US if Ucuzoglu does become global CEO, but the last two people in that role—Ucuzoglu and Cathy Engelbert, who is currently the commissioner of the WNBA—were promoted from Deloitte’s audit practice, Deloitte & Touche. The current CEO of Deloitte & Touche is Lara Abrash, who took over in June 2019.

Before being appointed CEO of Deloitte & Touche in 2015, Ucuzoglu was Deloitte’s national managing partner for government, regulatory, and professional matters. He was formerly a senior advisor to the chief accountant at the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Ucuzoglu said it was a great honor to be chosen as Deloitte’s next global leader. He added, “I believe deeply in Deloitte’s responsibility to lead through the unprecedented pace of change the world is experiencing, and to meet the rapidly expanding needs of our stakeholders. I want to thank Punit for his excellent leadership of Deloitte.”

Punit Renjen

Renjen, who served two four-year terms as CEO of Deloitte Global, will be given the title of global CEO emeritus upon his retirement. During his tenure, Deloitte’s global revenue has increased from $35 billion to more than \$59 billion in 2022, the highest

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

“It has truly been an honor and privilege to lead Deloitte over the past several years,” Renjen said. “More important than any commercial outcome, I am proud of the incredible societal impact we have been able to make as a purpose-driven enterprise. And I am looking forward to some exciting endeavors, including dedicating time to several societal causes about which I am deeply passionate, including sustainability and climate.”

Accounting • Firm Management

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved