

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Funding

The bill had been a 2022 campaign priority for most GOP Congressional candidates, but to take effect, it would need to next pass in the ...

Isaac M. O'Bannon • Jan. 09, 2023

On Monday, the first full day of the newly-sworn in 118th House of Representatives, the body voted mostly on party lines to pass a bill to undo most of the funding increase for the Internal Revenue Service that was included in the budget enacted

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Those who supported the original funding bill say the increase will help the agency increase collections on existing tax laws, and therefore increase federal revenue, by improving technology and computing systems, customer support, operations, and enforcement. Conservatives said it was an unnecessary increase in power and authority being given to the primary U.S. tax enforcement agency that would threaten small business owners.

The original annual government funding package that passed in 2022, and included the IRS funding increase, passed the Senate in December 2022 on a bipartisan vote of 68-29. It passed through the House of Representatives a few weeks earlier on a vote of 225-201.

Income Tax • IRS • Taxes

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved