The most impactful web3 finance and accounting event of the year

Bitwave, an enterprise tax and accounting software tailor-made for digital assets, will host the 2nd Annual Enterprise Digital Asset Summit (EDAS) in Austin, Texas, on April 25, 2023. The event continues the conversation from last year's summit and serves as a meeting ground for the growing community of finance, tax, and accounting professionals who are pioneering best practices to ensure the efficient, transparent, and secure use of digital assets within their organizations.

This is the premier event for professionals looking to gain a deeper understanding of practices that will not only make digital assets more secure and transparent for the organizations that use them today but will drive the next wave of enterprise adoption by demystifying these assets and providing rock-solid controls.”

Speakers at EDAS 2023 will include Gauntlet Networks Head of Finance Jesse Kao, OpenSea Head of Technical Accounting Mary Kauffman, Senior revenue accountant for Figment Mackenzie Patel, multiple senior leaders from Bitwave, and many more.

Additionally, CPAs can earn continuing professional education credits by attending sessions at this year's summit. Bitwave will also be hosting a user training session the day before, on April 24th, 2023, at the same venue.

Bitwave Co-Founder and COO Amy Kalnoki said, “If the question is, ‘Will enterprise use of digital assets grow significantly over the next five years,’ most CFOs and accounting professionals will tell you the obvious answer is ‘yes.’ With that in mind, it's increasingly important that we establish the professional connections and ongoing dialogue that will inform the accounting financial professional communities as we work together to realize the promise of digital assets. EDAS 2023 is a one-of-a-kind event that creates a space for industry professionals to help each other succeed as enterprise crypto adoption continues to grow.”
