AuditClub, a collaborative “Audit Service Center” for CPA firms and companies, has introduced AuditClub One, a in order to address the talent exodus and pipeline problems prevailing throughout the profession.

“Accountants are leaving corporations and audit firms in record numbers, as they reevaluate what they want from their careers. On average, about one-third of audit senior associates and one-fourth of audit directors and managers voluntarily left a Big 4 firm in 2022. Those who remain resign themselves to relentless hours, a high-stress work environment and lack of work-life balance,” says Chris Vanover, founder and CEO of AuditClub. “AuditClub One offers CPAs a true alternative that addresses those issues and enables them to create a fulfilling career in accounting and auditing on their own terms.”

AuditClub provides CPA firms and companies convenient access to its talented U.S.-based accountants and auditors with experience across all levels through its week-to-week subscription model. AuditClub was recognized among the Accounting Today 2023 Top New Products and an “innovator to watch” for its creative approach to solving challenges in the audit profession.

Just as startups disrupted the taxi market and hotel industry, AuditClub One offers CPAs a completely new career journey – one in which they can capitalize on their credentials more quickly and reap the rewards of entrepreneurship without the risks
