journeys through strategic enterprise resource planning and implementation centered on delivering forward-focused business insights.

“The speed of today’s market, paired with an increasingly complex regulatory and legal framework, can make it difficult for companies to create and maintain effective accounting structures and processes,” said Michael Aiello, CEO & Managing Partner of Centri. “The launch of our Accounting Transformation service will allow us to leverage our significant technical expertise and experience to help clients refine and optimize their accounting processes to guide their continued growth.”

Tori added, “If designed and managed properly, a business’ accounting team can play an invaluable role in determining and executing short and long-term growth strategies. However, today’s complicated accounting environment can make it difficult for companies to evaluate their accounting needs and implement the strategies needed for success. We are excited to launch our Accounting Transformation service line to bring our expertise to help clients build for the future.”
