environment, and the Exchange offers them the perfect opportunity to do so.

The Exchange features 21 concurrent sessions, providing diverse content relevant across industries and audit teams of all sizes, including:

- The opening keynote from Ron Hammond, Director, Government Relations at the Blockchain Association, which will provide an overview of the digital asset policy for the 118th U.S. Congress.
- An exploration into the risks and opportunities of generative AI and ChatGPT, as well as how internal auditors can incorporate the necessary enhancements to enterprise risk management to account for the new technologies.
- A discussion on how to deepen internal audit's impact on cybersecurity, with an examination of the SEC's final rule on cybersecurity risk management.
- The opportunities and challenges that blockchain and cryptocurrency bring to the financial services industry.
- Author and speaker Mike Evans' closing keynote on how to thrive, excel, and lead through change.

In addition to the profession-leading content, the conference offers networking opportunities for attendees to connect with their peers and discuss shared experiences within the financial services industry.

Attendees can earn up to 13 CPE credits during the two-day conference.
