Hauk said in a statement. "With their recognition as a leader in the construction industry and the San Diego member firm of Construction Industry CPAs and Consultants (CICPAC), they will be a fantastic addition to Eide Bailly."

Founded in 1981, RBTK specializes in overall accounting and tax services, but it also provides insightful business solutions, including business succession and retirement considerations. RBTK has extensive experience working with a variety of industries, including construction, real estate, mortgage banking, nonprofits, government, wholesale distribution, professional services, and more.

"The decision to join forces with Eide Bailly was easy as our values align seamlessly," said Scott Trendel, a partner at RBTK. "We're thrilled that this union will allow us to stay true to our current culture while also providing exciting opportunities for collaboration, additional resources for our clients, and expanded benefits and opportunities for our employees."

Since July, Eide Bailly has also merged in Phoenix CPA and tax planning firm Secore & Niedzialek, Seattle CPA firm King & Oliason, and California accounting firms Bessolo Haworth and Raimondo Pettit. A merger with Sioux Falls, SD-based technology solutions company High Plains Technology is expected to become official on Jan. 8, 2024.
