This first-of-its-kind role in COSO solidifies the importance COSO's executive board has placed on dedicating resources to taking COSO to the next level and elevating its importance for the future of business. By deploying committed COSO resources, the committee looks to expedite development of thought leadership pertaining to many critical areas organizations face globally.

"Lucia has already made great strides for COSO, bringing our mission to life through her deep knowledge, transformative spirit, and forward-thinking vision for the organization," said Doug Prawitt, Ph.D, CPA, lead director of COSO. "She is an innovative leader who is committed to ensuring the relevance and influence of COSO is on an accelerated track. We are very excited about the possibilities her new full-time role will open for COSO, as she is able to dedicate her full time and energy to taking COSO into the future."

Wind has been a business partner, enterprise risk management leader and internal audit executive at large technology firms with a global footprint, in addition to holding leadership roles at smaller enterprises and NFPs. A certified fraud examiner, Wind led ERM, risk assessment, internal audit and SOX compliance functions based on COSO frameworks and guidance in the enterprises where she worked previously.

"I am very excited to expand my role with COSO and continue my work in moving us forward on this exciting journey," said Wind. "As the rate of new risks around us grows, I look forward to leading COSO in the development of relevant thought leadership and to further engage directly with our stakeholders and the broader community."
