

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

new role at the FASB this July.

Jason Bramwell • Mar. 21, 2024

The Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) on March 20 appointed a longtime veteran of Big Four firm EY to the role of director of technical activities.

Jackson Day, who is currently a partner in professional practice at EY, will begin his new role at the FASB this July.

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us other users of financial information make decisions. I am honored to have the chance to do such important and fulfilling work.”

Day has spent most of his 38-year accounting career at EY, which he initially joined in 1986 on the audit staff in St. Louis. Rising through the ranks at the firm, his career path later took him to London, New York, and Munich serving as EY Global’s director of capital markets, as well as EY’s U.S. chief accountant.

He also served as the deputy chief accountant and then later as acting chief accountant in the Office of the Chief Accountant at the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, DC, from 2000-03. In addition to being a FASB practice fellow, Day has also been a member of the board’s Emerging Issues Task Force. He is a current or former member of numerous leadership and advisory groups in the accounting profession.

Day earned his undergraduate degree in business administration at Kansas State University.

“I am very pleased that Jack will join us to lead the FASB technical staff,” said FASB Chair Richard Jones. “His years of experience, his global perspective, and his collaborative leadership style will contribute positively to the work we will do in the years ahead.”

Accounting • Accounting Standards

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us