

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us which brokers will use to report digital asset transactions.

Jason Bramwell • Apr. 19, 2024

The IRS on Friday posted on its website the highly anticipated draft Form 1099-DA, a new tax form that cryptocurrency brokers will begin using next year to report digital asset transactions.

The tax agency teased the forthcoming tax form last August when it issued proposed regulations that would require brokers to report sales and exchanges of digital assets by customers.

“These proposed regulations are designed to help end confusion involving digital

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Brokers—defined by the IRS as “digital asset trading platforms, digital asset payment processors, and certain digital asset hosted wallets”—will be required to generate Form 1099-DA for each sale transaction and submit that information to the IRS and to their customers starting on Jan. 1, 2025.

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

City or town, state or province, country, and ZIP or foreign postal code		1f Proceeds $	1g Cost or other basis $	Notice, see the 2025 General Instructions for Certain Information Returns.
Account number		1h Accrued market discount $	1i Wash sales loss disallowed $
CUSIP number		2 Check if basis reported to IRS <input type="checkbox"/>	3a Reported to IRS: <input type="checkbox"/> Gross proceeds <input type="checkbox"/> Net proceeds
5 Check if loss is not allowed based on amount in 1f <input type="checkbox"/>		3b	4 Federal income tax withheld $
6 Gross gain or loss: <input type="checkbox"/> Short-term <input type="checkbox"/> Ordinary <input type="checkbox"/> Long-term		7a Check if 1f includes cash proceeds <input type="checkbox"/>		7b Check if 1f includes non-cash proceeds <input type="checkbox"/>
8 If 7b checked, type of non-cash proceeds		9 If 8 coded OTH, name and/or explanation of non-cash proceeds
10a Check if digital asset is a noncovered security <input type="checkbox"/>	10b Digital asset is a noncovered security because: <input type="checkbox"/> Broker did not provide hosted wallet services for it <input type="checkbox"/> It was acquired prior to 2023 <input type="checkbox"/> It was transferred in to broker
11a Sale transaction ID (TxID)
11b Digital asset address		11c Number of units		11d Check if sale is not recorded on the distributed ledger <input type="checkbox"/>
12a Transfer-in TxID number
12b Transfer-in digital asset address		12c Number of units transferred		12d If transfer-in not recorded on the distributed ledger, provide transfer-in date and time
13	14 State name	15 State identification no.		16 State tax withheld $ $

Form 1099-DA Cat. No. 735671 www.irs.gov/Form1099DA Department of the Treasury - Internal Revenue Service

Source: Internal Revenue Service

“For sales or exchanges of digital assets that take place on or after Jan. 1, 2025, the proposed regulations would require brokers, including digital asset trading platforms, digital asset payment processors and certain digital asset hosted wallet providers, to report gross proceeds on a newly developed Form 1099-DA and to provide payee statements to customers,” the IRS said last August. “Brokers, in certain circumstances, would also be required to include gain or loss and basis information for sales that take place on or after Jan. 1, 2026, on these information returns and statements, so that customers have the information they need to prepare their tax returns.”

Draft form 1099-DA captures unsurprising data points, such as date acquired, date sold, proceeds, and cost basis of crypto assets sold—information that is needed and helpful for the taxpayer to complete their crypto tax filings, Shehan Chandrasekera,

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us could drastically change how users interact with crypto platforms. The will change DeFi [decentralized finance] as we know it today.”

After reviewing draft Form 1099-DA, Jessalyn Dean, vice president of tax information reporting at Ledgible, posted her first impressions on LinkedIn:

- They have packed a lot of lines and boxes into this form.
- As expected, the look and feel is similar to the Form 1099-B for reporting sales of traditional financial products (e.g. equities).
- Most of the boxes line up as expected with the required information as listed in the proposed regulations from August 2023.
- The inclusion of a “wash sale loss disallowed” Box 1i does not mean that crypto is subject to wash sale rules. It is included for purposes of digital assets that are also stock or securities already subject to wash sale rules (e.g. certain tokenized equities).
- A Box 11d is included to indicate that a sale is not recorded on the distributed ledger. This is necessary because very often digital asset addresses or transaction IDs cannot be provided because transactions occurred within internal record keeping systems.
- Box 5 is for a broker to indicate that a loss is non-deductible due to a “reportable change in control or capital structure” and references Form 8949 and Schedule D Instructions. However, neither of those instructions give any guidance on what kind of events in crypto and digital assets could apply in these circumstances. They defer to the broker to simply figure it out in the dark with the further statement that “The broker should advise you of any losses on a separate statement.”

The IRS noted that this early draft form release may change based on decisions made in response to comments received on the proposed regulations issued last August.

Public comments can be submitted to the IRS about draft or final forms, instructions,

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved